

The Gap-Intel Brief

Profitable businesses, invisible online — and how we help them · Precision / Kladius · June 2026

36

QUALIFIED ≥ 7.5

6

HONOURABLE

16

BROKERS

8

BUYERS

3

REGIONS

The opportunity

Across Ireland, Scotland and outer London there is a repeatable pattern: established, reputation-rich businesses — dental labs, funeral directors, opticians, private clinics, surveyors, specialist retailers — that make a sensible margin but are nearly invisible online. No website, or just a stale Google listing with a handful of old reviews and no way to collect more. They're not short of skill or customers; they're short of visibility and systems. That gap is the whole business.

Two doorways, five plays

1 · Sell growth

- 1a % of every lead. High-ticket: we build & market at our cost, take a slice of every qualified lead. Zero up-front to them.
- 1b Free website → review → referral. Give it free, ask for a review and a referral. Upsell only if they ask.
- 1c Intro → finder's fee. If they'd rather sell, we introduce a broker/buyer and take a fee.

2 · Partner / grow / acquire

- 2a Free value → growth partner. Attached owners keep the business; we grow it for a share of the upside (rev-share / earn-in).
- 2b Broker the deal. Funding stack covers ~50–70% of the build; we source funding & deals for a fee.
- ★ The opener is always the same: give value first, ask for a review and the truth about their problem. No strings.

Objection-handling vault

“I get all my work by word of mouth.”

You’ve earned the reputation — but ~87% of people still Google you first, and right now they find nothing or a profile with no reviews, so they ring the next name. We just make the reputation you already have show up.

“I don’t have time for this.”

You don’t need any. We build it, we run it, you carry on with the job. All we need is ten minutes to hear what’s actually slowing the business down.

“Websites are a waste of money — I had one, did nothing.”

Agreed — a brochure site does nothing. We don’t sell pages, we sell booked jobs. If it doesn’t bring you work you don’t keep paying — and the first one’s free.

“How much is this going to cost me?” (high-ticket / 1a)

Nothing up front. We build and market it at our cost and only get paid a slice of the leads we actually bring you. No work, no fee.

“What’s the catch with a free website?”

No catch. It’s yours. All we ask is an honest review if it’s any good, and that you tell us the one thing holding the business back — even if we can’t fix it.

“I’m thinking of selling / retiring soon.”

Then let’s talk about that too. A tidy online presence lifts what a buyer will pay — and if you’re serious, I know the right brokers and buyers and can make a quiet introduction.

“AI / my nephew can do a website for free now.”

They can do the page. They can’t get you found, answer the calls you miss, chase the reviews and follow up the leads. That’s the bit that makes money — and it’s what we run for you.

“I don’t trust handing my business to an outsider.”

Fair. That's why we start by giving, not taking — a free build, no contract, no obligation. You decide if we've earned the next conversation.

The pipeline — 42 verified businesses

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
9.3	Pinewood Dental Laboratory Ltd	dental/clinics	Scotland	1a · lead %	High

Approach: Lead with the obvious gap, not a pitch: a 30-year, 5-star specialist lab that comes up nowhere on Google when an Aberdeen denture or mouth-guard patient searches, because there is no website and the reviews are old and scattered. Offer to build them a simple, clean website and tidy up their Google presence for free, so the people already looking for exactly what James does can actually find and trust them. Keep it calm and concrete - James is the expert; we just make sure new private patients can reach him.

Free hook: A free, no-strings one-page website plus a cleaned-up Google Business Profile, so patients searching 'dentures Aberdeen' / 'mouth guard Aberdeen' actually find the lab and see its 5-star reputation.

Ask: When a new private patient finds you today - not a referral from a dentist - how do they usually hear about you, and how many of those come in per month?

- When a brand-new private patient (denture, mouth guard, repair) comes to you, how do they currently find you - word of mouth, dentist referral, or online?
- Roughly what is one new private-patient job worth to you, and how many would you happily take on per month if they came in?
- Are you actively trying to grow the private side, or are you mainly keeping the dentist/B2B work steady - what does 'better' look like for the business in the next year?

9.3	Carrigdean Dental Centre (Carrig Dean Medical & Dental Centre)	dental	Ireland	1a · lead %	High
-----	--	--------	---------	-------------	------

Approach: Dr. Lynagh, I noticed Carrigdean Dental has no website of its own — patients searching for a Toghther dentist only find scattered directory listings, so high-value cases like root canals, whitening and restorative work are going to practices that show up first on Google. I'd build you a simple, professional site and Google Business profile at no upfront cost, and we'd only get paid as a small percentage of the new patient enquiries it actually brings in. It's straightforward and measurable, and there's nothing to commit to until you see the leads coming through.

Free hook: A free, no-strings professional one-page website plus a properly optimised Google Business Profile so the practice actually shows up when locals search "dentist Toghther".

Ask: If you could fill one specific gap in the practice tomorrow — more high-value treatments, more new patients, or quieter days filled — which one would actually move the needle for you?

- When a new patient comes in for something like a root canal, implant or whitening, what's that typically worth to the practice over the course of their treatment?
- Right now, how do most new patients find you — word of mouth, the medical centre, or searching online — and roughly how many new ones come in a month?

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
	Have you ever turned away or had to refer out work because the chairs were full, or do you have capacity you'd like to fill?

9.3	Dooley's Funeral Directors (Colm Dooley, Funeral Director)	funeral directors	Ireland	1b · free site	High
-----	---	-------------------	---------	----------------	------

Approach: Colm, you've run the Kilcormac funeral business your grandfather started in 1921, and yet when a family in Offaly searches for you online there's no website of your own to find - just a RIP.ie entry and the same email as the Midland Bar. I'd build you a simple, dignified website at no cost, so the family name and your two phone numbers are the first thing people see when they need you most. No catch and nothing to sign - I'd just ask, if you're happy with it, that you mention us to anyone in the trade who could use the same.

Free hook: A free, tasteful one-page website with the Dooley name, history since 1921, services, and both phone numbers - so the family is reachable and findable online with no website cost and nothing to sign.

Ask: When a family needs you and can't immediately recall your number, where do they currently turn - and has that ever cost you a call that went to another undertaker in the area instead?

- When a bereaved family in the area first contacts you, how do they usually find your number - word of mouth, RIP.ie, or do they already know the family name?
- Have you ever wished you had your own website, or has the business always come steadily enough by reputation that you've never needed one?
- Are you looking to keep things steady the way they are, or is the next generation (Padraig and others) wanting to grow or modernise how the business is presented?

9.0	Fitzsimons Family Fishmongers	specialist retail - fishmonger	Ireland	1b · free site	High
-----	--------------------------------------	--------------------------------	---------	----------------	------

Approach: Lead with the visible gap: locals travel for their fish, but anyone searching online finds no website and a dead domain, so they lose every "fresh fish near me" searcher. Offer a free clean site - hours, today's catch, ready-meals, click-to-reserve - so they own a real online home instead of relying on Facebook. Keep it calm and plain; the owners are 40+ and value substance over hype.

Free hook: A free, ready-to-launch website: shop details, today's fresh catch and shellfish tank, the homemade ready-meal range, map/hours and a click-to-call "reserve your fish" button - plus a simple way to start collecting Google reviews.

Ask: Right now, if someone in Dublin who has never heard of you wants fresh fish today, how would they ever find you?

- When a new customer says they'd never heard of you, where did the ones who DO find you usually come from - word of mouth, Facebook, or someone Googling?
- You clearly have loyal regulars - roughly what is a regular customer worth to you over a year, and how many new faces would actually move the needle?
- What happened to the old website / fitzsimonsfish.ie, and are you doing anything at the moment to bring in new customers beyond the shopfront and Facebook?

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
Where do you want the shop in three years - busier counter, more ready-meals, online ordering or delivery - or steady as it is?
9.0	Lough Dental Practice (Dr Sean Toomey)	dental	Ireland	1a · lead %	High
Approach: Dr Toomey, you have a genuinely strong reputation in The Lough but online you only show up through a Golden Pages entry and a templated PaxAd mini-page, with around 25 older Google reviews and no real website or booking. For a private practice doing crowns, veneers and root canal work, that is the kind of high-value treatment people quietly research before they ever pick up the phone, and most of that is going to practices that are easier to find. I would build you a proper dedicated site and a simple system that keeps fresh reviews coming in, at no cost up front, and we only get paid as a share of the new patient enquiries it actually brings you. Free hook: A free, professionally built dedicated website for Lough Dental Practice (own domain, services, online enquiry/booking) plus a simple automated Google-review request setup - no cost and no obligation up front. Ask: If you could reliably get more of one type of patient or treatment through the door, which would actually move the needle for the practice - and what's stopping that happening now? - When a brand-new patient comes in for something significant like a crown, implant or full course of treatment, what is that roughly worth to the practice over the first year? - How are new patients finding you today - is it mostly word of mouth and passing trade, or are some coming from Google? - Are you actively trying to grow the practice or fill specific gaps in the diary, or are you comfortable at current capacity?
9.0	Campion Denture Clinic and Laboratory Ltd (Campion Dental Laboratory)	dental labs	Ireland	1a · lead %	High

Approach: Kieran, I looked for Champion Denture Clinic online and you don't actually have a working website - just a few directory listings and the Facebook page, and no Google reviews collected. For private denture and cosmetic work, people now check Google before they ring, so you're likely losing enquiries you never see to dentists who simply show up better. I'd build you a clean one-page site for free, no strings, and set up a simple way to gather Google reviews; if it starts bringing you enquiries we can talk about a fair share of that.

Free hook: A free, professionally built one-page website for Champion Denture Clinic (services, location, contact, before/after) plus a simple Google review request set-up - no cost, no obligation.

Ask: What is the biggest thing holding back the number of new private denture patients you take on each month - is it finding them, time/capacity, or something else?

- When someone needs a new set of dentures or a repair, how do they usually find and contact you today - phone, walk-in, or a dentist referring them?
- Roughly what is a new private denture patient worth to you, and how many new enquiries do you get in a typical month?
- Are you actively trying to grow the clinic side, or are you comfortable at the volume you're at now?

9.0	W.M. Christie Family Butcher (William Christie)	specialist retail	Scotland	1b · free site	High
-----	--	-------------------	----------	----------------	------

Approach: Willie, I noticed Christie's has been a Brunsfield institution since 1889 but doesn't yet have its own website or a way to take orders or reviews online — right now everything runs through the shop phone. I'd like to build you a simple, smart website (showing your venison, Borders beef and lamb, sausages and steak pies, with a click-to-call and order-by-phone) completely free, no strings, so customers searching "butcher Brunsfield" find you first instead of a third-party listing. If it earns its keep, all I'd ask in return is a quick review and to point a couple of fellow shop owners my way.

Free hook: A free, professionally built one-page website for Christie's — products, story (135+ years, 5th generation), opening hours, map, and a prominent click-to-call/order-by-phone button — plus claiming and tidying the Google Business Profile so the shop shows up properly in local search.

Ask: What's the one thing that would actually make your life easier or your shop busier right now — more new customers walking in, smoother order-taking at peak times, or something else entirely?

- When someone phones in an order or a Christmas turkey/steak-pie booking, roughly how many of those are new customers versus regulars — and do you ever turn enquiries away or miss them when the shop's busy?
- Around your peak periods (Christmas, festive game season), how much of your trade is repeat regulars versus people who just found you, and would more new faces actually help or would you struggle to serve them?
- Have you ever tried any online presence or had customers ask why they can't order or find you online, and is growing the shop something you actually want — or are you happy at the current size?

9.0	Mairi Urquhart & Son Funeral Group	Funeral directors	Scotland	1b · free site	High
-----	---	-------------------	----------	----------------	------

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
Approach: Reach out to Mairi or David directly, calm and respectful given the sector. Note that the firm has clearly earned strong trust across three Highland communities over 20 years, yet that reputation is almost invisible online - there are zero Google reviews on any of your listings, so families searching "funeral director near me" in Ross-shire see no social proof at all. Offer to set up a simple, dignified way to gently invite families to leave a review, and to tidy the website, at no cost, so the goodwill you already have starts showing up where people look. Free hook: A free, simple review-collection setup (a gentle post-funeral review invite plus a tidied Google Business Profile) so the trust the firm already holds becomes visible online - no cost, no commitment. Ask: When a family in Ross-shire who has never used you before is deciding which funeral director to call, what do you think makes them pick up the phone to you versus someone else? - When a family chooses you over another firm in the area, what do they usually tell you was the reason - and where did they first hear about you? - Right now, do you have any way of inviting families to leave a review online, or has it always felt awkward to ask given the circumstances? - Across the three branches, are there areas - say Dornoch or Muir of Ord - where you'd like to be the obvious first call but feel less established?
9.0	Karen Lowe Dental Surgery	Healthcare clinic - Private de	Ireland	1a · lead %	High
Approach: Lead with respect for a 20-year Terenure practice that clearly runs on reputation and word of mouth. Point out one concrete, visible gap: despite two decades of happy patients, only a single review shows up online and the website is a static page with no way to book or leave feedback, so newcomers searching "dentist Terenure" rarely find her. Offer to quietly fix the visibility side first - a modern site and an automatic way to turn existing patients into Google reviews - before any talk of a wider arrangement. Free hook: A free, modern mobile-friendly one-page site (or refresh of karenlowe.ie) plus a simple automated text/email that asks existing patients for a Google review - no obligation, just to show what a steady review flow looks like. Ask: If you wanted two or three more implant or veneer patients a month, is the real bottleneck being found by new people online, or is it more about chair time and staff capacity? - When a new patient comes in for something like an implant or veneers, roughly what is that worth to the practice over the first year - and how many of those are you turning away or could you comfortably take on more? - Right now, how do new patients actually find you - word of mouth, walk-by, or are they searching online - and do you have any way of knowing? - Have you ever asked happy patients to leave a Google review, and is there anything in place today to do that automatically?
9.0	L. Dollay Optometrist	Opticians	London	1b · free site	High

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
Approach: You've run two practices for nearly two decades and invested in hospital-grade OCT scanning, yet online you're almost invisible - one or two reviews across the web, which is well below what a practice of your standing should show. Most people now check reviews before booking an eye test, so new patients are quietly choosing competitors who simply look more established online. I'd start by quietly fixing that for you for free, so the reputation you've already earned in the chair finally shows up where patients are looking. Free hook: A free, no-strings review-collection setup (simple system that asks happy patients at checkout to leave a Google review) plus a modernised landing page that surfaces their OCT scanning and NHS accreditations - turning their real-world reputation into visible online proof. Ask: If a patient is choosing between you and a chain optician five minutes away, what do you think actually makes them pick - or not pick - you, and what would you most want them to know before they decide? • When a new patient books an eye test with you, what's a typical first-visit and follow-on spend once glasses or contact lenses are factored in - roughly what is one new patient worth to the practice over a couple of years? • How are new patients currently finding you - word of mouth, the NHS referral schemes, or did anything online actually bring them in over the last year? • After 15-20 years and two branches, are you looking to grow patient numbers, or is this more about keeping the practices busy and well-known locally?
8.8	Tom Harkins Jeweller	Established local services / p	Scotland	1a · lead %	High Approach: Michael, you run one of the longest-established jewellers on Byres Road, but when someone in the West End searches for a jeweller or "sell gold Glasgow" today, you are essentially invisible — no website and only a couple of stray reviews, so the trade is quietly going to chains and pawn shops with worse offers. We build you a proper website and Google presence at no upfront cost, then we only get paid as a small share of the enquiries it actually brings you. It is the kind of thing your shop has earned over twenty years but the online side has never caught up with. Free hook: A free, done-for-you one-page website + properly set-up Google Business Profile (with a simple review-request link) so the shop finally shows up when West End locals search for a jeweller, gold buyer, or watch/clock repair. Ask: What's the single biggest thing stopping you doing more of your most profitable work — the high-value gold and watch deals — more often? • When someone walks in to sell or buy gold or a watch, what is a typical transaction worth to you, and roughly how many of those do you do a week? • How are new customers finding you right now — is it almost all passing footfall on Byres Road, or do people phone first? • Have you ever turned away or lost a higher-value repair or gold deal because the person couldn't find or trust you online beforehand?
8.8	St. Margarets Residential Home	care homes/domiciliary	London	1b · free site	High Approach: Lead with the visible gap, not a pitch: "When a family searches for a Sidcup dementia home, you don't show up with your own site — only directory listings, and your most recent review is from 2023." Offer to build a simple, professional one-page website for the home for free, with their CQC 'Good' rating, room details and fees, so families find them directly instead of a competitor. Keep it calm and concrete — frame it as making it easier for the right families to find and trust them, since beds fill through reputation and referral.

Free hook: A free, professional one-page website for St. Margarets — CQC 'Good' rating, rooms/fees, photos and an enquiry form — so families searching in Sidcup/Bexley find the home directly rather than only via third-party directories.

Ask: If a room comes free next month, what's your actual plan to fill it — who do you call, and how long does it usually take?

- When a family is choosing a home for a parent with dementia, how do most of them first hear about or find you today — word of mouth, the local authority, or one of the directory sites?
- What's an empty bed costing you per week, and how many weeks does a room typically sit empty between residents?
- Are you doing anything at the moment to ask happy families to leave a review or refer others, or does that happen on its own?

8.8	The Galway Dental Laboratory	Dental lab	Ireland	1a · lead %	Med
-----	-------------------------------------	------------	---------	-------------	-----

Approach: You are one of the few dental labs in Galway with no website at all - dentists and members of the public searching for denture repairs find Atlantis and PD Ceramics first, while you rely entirely on the phone and word of mouth. I would like to build you a clean professional one-page site, no strings, that shows your services, location and the phone number so you stop losing those searches to competitors. If it brings you work we can talk about a simple way to keep new enquiries coming; if not, you keep the site.

Free hook: A free, professionally built one-page website (services, address, map, click-to-call phone) plus a Google Business Profile claim/clean-up so they actually appear when people search 'denture repair Galway'.

Ask: If you wanted more of the right work tomorrow - more dentist accounts or more denture-repair patients - what is the single thing standing in the way today?

- Where does most of your new work come from today - referrals from a handful of regular dentists, walk-in denture repairs, or something else?
- Roughly what is a typical case or repair worth to you, and how many new enquiries a month would actually be useful versus more than you can handle?
- Have you ever turned work away or felt you could grow if more dentists and patients knew you existed, or are you comfortable at current volume?

8.8	Narwhal Dental Laboratory	Dental lab	Ireland	1a · lead %	Med
-----	----------------------------------	------------	---------	-------------	-----

Approach: Lead with the visible gap, calmly: Narwhal shows up on GoldenPages and Facebook but has no website, so when someone in West Cork searches "denture repair near me" there is nothing for them to land on. Offer to build a simple, no-strings website that explains the public denture-repair service and the B2B prosthetics/thermoforming work, with a clear phone-and-enquiry path. Frame it as making the work they already do easier to find, not as a marketing pitch — the owner is likely a hands-on prosthetic technician who values being judged on craftsmanship, not hype. Free hook: A free, ready-to-go one-page website for Narwhal Dental Laboratory — clear sections for public denture repairs and B2B removable prosthetics/thermoforming, the Larkin Street address, click-to-call phone, and an enquiry form — built and shown before asking for anything. Ask: What is the one thing that, if it were easier or busier, would make the biggest difference to the lab right now — more public denture-repair walk-ins, or more dental-practice accounts sending you regular work? • When a member of the public needs a denture repaired urgently, how do they usually find you today — word of mouth, a dentist referral, or do some give up because they can't find you online? • Roughly what is a new dental-practice account worth to you over a year versus a one-off public denture repair — which side of the business do you most want to grow? • Are you currently doing anything to bring in new work (Facebook posts, dentist relationships, directories), or has it all been referral so far?

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
8.5	Malahide Dental Practice (Dr Niall Gough)	Healthcare clinic - private de	Ireland	1a · lead %	Med
Approach: Niall, you've clearly built a long-standing, well-regarded practice opposite the DART in Malahide, but online you're nearly invisible: a dated site, a couple of scattered reviews, and nothing pulling in new private patients. We can build you a clean modern site and a system that quietly collects Google reviews from happy patients, at no upfront cost. We'd only earn when we actually bring you new high-value cases like implants or whitening, so the risk sits entirely with us. Free hook: A free, modern mobile-friendly website (or a single high-converting landing page for implants/whitening) plus a quick Google Business Profile and review-collection setup - no strings, no upfront cost. Ask: What's the one thing about how new patients find and choose you that frustrates you most right now - and what would actually moving the needle look like to you? • When a new patient comes in for something like an implant or a full crown-and-bridge case, roughly what is that worth to the practice over the course of treatment? • How are new private patients finding you today - is it almost all word-of-mouth and existing patients, or are you actively doing anything to bring new ones in? • Do you have any system at the moment for asking happy patients to leave a Google review, or does that just not happen? • Are you actually looking to grow the private/high-ticket side, or are you comfortable at current capacity and just want to protect what you have?
8.5	St John's Hearing Aid Centre Ltd	Audiology	Scotland	1a · lead %	High
Approach: Open by acknowledging the obvious: they have built a genuinely respected hearing-aid business over 50 years across several branches, but their website is a dated .asp site and they have almost no Google reviews, so people searching "hearing test Musselburgh" or "ear wax removal Edinburgh" rarely find them. Lead with a no-strings offer to rebuild the Musselburgh/Edinburgh site as a clean modern page and set up automatic review collection, so the reputation they already have offline finally shows up online. Keep it calm and practical — frame it as making 50 years of goodwill visible, not as "marketing". Free hook: A free modern, mobile-friendly replacement for the Musselburgh/Edinburgh branch page plus an automatic Google review request set-up — no obligation, so their offline reputation finally shows up when people search locally. Ask: If more of the right people could find you online next month, would the branch actually have the clinic time to see them, or is staff capacity the real bottleneck rather than enquiries? • When someone new walks in for a hearing test and goes on to buy aids, what's that customer typically worth to you over the first year? • Where do your new patients come from today — word of mouth, the website, GP referrals — and roughly how many new enquiries a month does the Edinburgh/Musselburgh branch get? • Are you actively trying to grow the Edinburgh side, or mainly keep the existing book ticking over and looked after?

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
8.3	Ronald Campbell Roofing Contractor	Trades	Scotland	1b · free site	Med
Approach: Ronnie, I came across R. Campbell Roofing while looking at roofers around Lochaber and noticed that after 40 years and all the council and housing association work you do, there's no actual website pulling in the people Googling "roofer Fort William" at 9pm with a leak. Right now anyone searching only finds a Yell stub and a couple of old reviews, while the work itself clearly speaks for itself. I'd like to build you a simple, proper website for free so the next homeowner with a slipped slate finds you instead of someone from Inverness. Free hook: A free, mobile-friendly one-page website showing your services (slate, felt/flat, rough casting), your 40-year track record and Lochaber coverage, with a click-to-call button - so people Googling a roofer in Fort William actually reach you. Ask: If you wanted two more good domestic jobs a month, what's the thing that actually stops that happening today - not enough enquiries, too busy to chase them, or being hard to find online? • When a homeowner calls you out of the blue for a roof repair, roughly what's a typical job worth to you, and how many of those would you happily take on next month? • Right now, where do most of your new customers come from - word of mouth, the councils, or people finding you online? • Are you actively trying to win more domestic work, or are you comfortable with the council and housing association contracts keeping you busy?
8.3	Dr Ciaran Casey Dentist	Healthcare clinic - Private de	Ireland	1a · lead %	Med

Approach: Dr Casey, you have built a 25-year reputation in Terenure, but online almost none of it shows - the site is essentially a brochure with no booking, and you have effectively no Google reviews despite thousands of happy patients. For a practice doing implants and crowns, that gap quietly sends high-value enquiries to newer competitors who simply look more active. I would like to fix the visible part for free first, then only get paid on the new implant and crown enquiries we actually bring you. Free hook: A free, modern landing page for the high-ticket implants/crowns service plus a done-for-you Google review request system that turns existing happy patients into visible 5-star reviews - no cost, no commitment, just to prove we can move the needle. Ask: If new patient enquiries dried up next month, what part of the practice would feel it first - and what have you tried so far to attract more implant and cosmetic cases? • When a new patient comes in for an implant or a crown, what is that typically worth to the practice over the course of treatment? • Right now, where do most of your new patients come from - word of mouth, the website, or somewhere else - and roughly how many new ones a month? • You have 25 years of patients but almost no online reviews; is that because you have never had a system to ask, or a deliberate choice? • Are you looking to grow the higher-value side of the practice (implants, cosmetic), keep it steady, or are you thinking about winding down at some point?

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
8.0	FX Rowan & Co. Solicitors	Solicitors	Ireland	1a · lead %	High
Approach: Francis, I came across FX Rowan & Co. while looking at Dublin personal-injury firms and noticed that despite nearly 30 years of practice, the firm has effectively no online reviews and a website still showing a leftover demo template page. For a PI practice a single new client can be worth a substantial settlement fee, so the gap between your reputation and your digital visibility is costing real cases. I'd be glad to show you, with no obligation, exactly what a prospective client sees today and how we'd fix it. Free hook: A free, no-strings audit plus a rebuilt modern landing page / homepage mockup for FX Rowan showing how the firm would appear to someone searching "personal injury solicitor Dublin", with the demo page removed and a review/enquiry capture flow built in. Ask: When a new personal-injury enquiry comes in today, what does that journey actually look like from first contact to instruction - and where do you feel you lose the ones that don't convert? • Roughly what is a new personal-injury client worth to the firm on average, and how many new enquiries do you take on in a typical month? • Where do most of your new clients come from today - referrals, repeat business, or online search - and have you ever tracked which? • Have you ever run any online advertising or asked happy clients to leave a review, and if not, is that because of time, the regulatory rules, or something else? • Over the next year, do you actually want more case volume, or are you happy at your current level and more focused on protecting margins?
8.0	Connolly's Fish Company (Connolly Seafood)	specialist retail (fishmonger	Ireland	1b · free site	High

Approach: I'd open plainly: "I noticed the website you advertise on your listings, stevieconnollyseafood.com, no longer works, so anyone searching for you online lands on Facebook or a scatter of directory pages." Then keep it concrete and low-key: a fishmonger sourcing from your own five trawlers, BIM-certified, deserves a proper shopfront online so locals searching "fishmonger Rathmines" find your hours, range and traceability story straight away. Offer to build that one-page site for free as a starting point, no commitment, and we talk about the rest only if it's useful to you. Free hook: A free, mobile-friendly one-page website at a working domain showing your hours, location, the five-trawler/100%-traceability story, BIM certification and a click-to-call - replacing the dead stevieconnollyseafood.com so searches actually land on you. Ask: What is the one thing that, if it changed, would make the biggest difference to the shop next year - more new customers walking in, more reliable repeat trade, or just freeing up time? • When someone new finds you and becomes a regular, roughly what is a steady weekly customer worth to you over a year? • How are people finding you today - is it mostly passing trade and word of mouth, or do you get calls and orders from people searching online? • Your dead domain still gets advertised on listings - have you had customers tell you they couldn't find your site or your opening hours?

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF

8.0	James Cockburn Funeral Directors	Established local services	Scotland	1b · free site	High
Approach: Open with respect for the firm's history: 90+ years serving Govan, the last independent family name still standing locally, and Gavin as the third generation carrying it. Then point gently to one concrete gap: families who have nothing but praise for the care they received leave almost no public trace of it online, so the next grieving family searching "funeral directors Govan" doesn't see those stories. Offer to fix that quietly and for free, with no obligation, because the goodwill is already there and just isn't being captured. Free hook: A free, modern, mobile-friendly website refresh plus a simple, tactful review-collection link families can be given after the service, so the genuine praise you already receive starts showing up where searching families can see it. Ask: If you wanted to take on more families next year without changing the standard of care you give each one, what is the single thing standing in the way today? • When a family chooses you over a larger chain or the Co-op, what usually tipped it in your favour, and where do most of your new families come from today? • Roughly what is a typical funeral worth to you, and how many enquiries in a month turn into an arrangement you take on? • Do you do anything at the moment to ask satisfied families to leave a review or recommend you, or has that always just happened by word of mouth?

8.0	D McPherson (Fruit & Fishmonger)	specialist retail	Scotland	1b · free site	High Approach: Stephen, I came across D McPherson while looking for the best fishmongers in Edinburgh and was surprised a 1907, fourth-generation shop with your reputation has no website at all - just a Facebook page.

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
People searching "fishmonger Gorgie" or "fresh fish near me" can't find you and your daily Newhaven catch the way they find the chains. I'd build you a simple, smart website for free, no strings, so the trade you already have a name for actually shows up online - and if it earns its keep, we can talk about keeping your Google reviews flowing from there. Free hook: A free, professionally built one-page website (mobile-first, with your story since 1907, daily Newhaven sourcing, opening hours, location and a click-to-call) so you finally show up on Google searches and Maps - no cost, no obligation. Ask: If footfall on Gorgie Road dipped for a quiet month, where would your next dozen new customers realistically come from? • When a new customer walks in for the first time, how do they usually say they found you - word of mouth, passing the shop, or searching online? • Roughly what is a regular fish-counter customer worth to you over a year, so we know what winning a few more each week is actually worth? • Right now, are you doing anything at all to bring in new custom, or is it all reputation and footfall on Gorgie Road?

8.0	Beaver Architectural Ironmongery Limited	B2B niche wholesale / speciali	London	1a · lead %	High
Approach: Call on the main line and speak to one of the directors. Open plainly: you are the established South London specialist for architectural ironmongery, but anyone searching online today lands on a dated site with almost no reviews to back up 25+ years of work, so contractors who do not already know you never find you. Offer to rebuild the site and add a simple online scheduling/quote-request capture at no cost, framed as making it easier for builders to send floor plans, and only discuss commercials once inbound enquiries start landing. Free hook: A free, modernised website with a built-in send-us-your-floor-plans / request-a-schedule online enquiry form, plus a quick review-collection setup so 25+ years of trade reputation is finally visible to contractors searching online. Ask: What is the single biggest thing slowing down winning new trade accounts right now: finding new specifiers, getting found by them, or converting an enquiry into a standing order? • When a new building contractor or specifier finds you and places a first order, what's a typical job worth to you — and how many of those a month would meaningfully change your year? • Right now, where do your new trade accounts actually come from — referrals, reps on site, or anything online — and which of those would you most like to grow? • Of the enquiries that come through your free floor-plan scheduling service, how many start online versus by phone, and would you want more of them arriving as ready-to-quote requests?

8.0	Goskirk Pettinger Optometrists & Opticians	Opticians / Optometrists	Scotland	1b · free site	High
Approach: Open by acknowledging they are clearly a long-established, well-run independent (since 1974, four Highland practices) and that the site itself is solid - so this is not a website pitch. Point to the specific visible gap: across all four locations they have only single-digit reviews despite decades of happy patients, and no system is capturing that goodwill, so new patients searching "opticians Dingwall/Inverness" don't see the trust they have earned. Offer to set up a simple, hands-off review-collection flow so every eye test quietly turns satisfied patients into public reviews. Keep it calm and factual - the owner is likely 40+ and values their reputation, not hype. Free hook: A free, done-for-you Google review-collection setup for one practice (e.g. Dingwall): a simple QR/SMS flow staff can hand patients after a test, plus a tidy review-request page - so they immediately see new genuine reviews coming in at no cost or commitment. Ask: If you could fix one thing about how new patients find and choose you across the four practices, what would it be - and what's currently stopping that from happening? • When a new patient walks in for the first time, do you actually know whether they found you via Google, a referral, or just walking past - and which of the four practices most needs more new patients? • Right now you have a handful of reviews despite 50 years of patients - is anyone systematically asking happy patients to leave one, or does it just happen by chance? • What's a new private spectacle/contact-lens patient worth to you over the years they stay with you, and how many more could each practice comfortably take on?

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
8.0	McNicol Property Consultants	Chartered Surveyors	Scotland	1a · lead %	High
Approach: Scott, you've built 20 years of RICS-backed credibility but your firm is effectively invisible in search and has no reviews working for you, which is unusual for a practice handling instructions of this size. We help established surveyors capture the landlords and tenants who are already searching for commercial advice in Glasgow but never find you. No upfront cost on our side, we'd earn only on the qualified leads we actually bring you. Free hook: A free, no-strings 'Glasgow commercial surveyor' visibility audit plus a fast-loading lead-capture landing page that turns search traffic into named enquiries (lettings/lease advisory/investment) for him to keep. Ask: If you wanted to win two more commercial instructions next quarter, what's actually stopping that from happening today, capacity, visibility, or competition? • When a landlord or tenant instructs you on a letting, lease advisory or investment job, what's a typical fee value to you, and how many of those come in per month? • Where do your instructions come from today, mostly referrals and repeat clients, or do any genuinely come from the website? • If we put two or three extra qualified commercial instructions in front of you each month, do you have the capacity and appetite to take them on?
7.8	Ivy Dental Practice	Dental	Scotland	1a · lead %	Med
Approach: Lead with the specific, verifiable gap: the Ivy practice on Dalkeith Road has no website of its own and almost no reviews, despite 70+ years of trading and BDA Good Practice status. Keep it factual and low-pressure and acknowledge he already runs implant marketing through New Life Teeth, positioning this as fixing the neglected local Ivy brand rather than competing with that. Free hook: A free, ready-to-launch one-page website for the Ivy Dental practice (Dalkeith Road branding, services, click-to-call, map) plus a simple Google review link/QR so reception can start collecting reviews this week — no cost, no commitment. Ask: Of everything in the practice right now, what's the one thing about getting new patients through the door that frustrates you most? • When someone in south Edinburgh searches for a dentist and finds only your directory listings with three reviews, how many do you think you lose to practices with a proper site and reviews? • Where do your implant and All-on-4 enquiries actually come from today — the Ivy practice, or New Life Teeth — and which one do you want to grow? • What's a new All-on-4 or implant patient worth to you over their treatment, and how many more a month would make a real difference?

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
7.8	McAllister's Quality Fishmonger	specialist retail - fishmonger	Ireland	1b · free site	Med
Approach: Bill, I came across McAllister's online and noticed the shop has a strong reputation locally - even Kenny's pub lists you as their fish supplier - but there's no website at all, so anyone in Lucan searching "fresh fish near me" never finds you. I can build you a simple, no-cost website that shows your fish counter, opening hours, Bill's recommended recipes and a click-to-call, so new customers can find and reach you. No catch - if it brings you business, all I'd ask is that you leave us a review and point us to one or two other shops who might want the same. Free hook: A free, ready-to-go one-page website (counter photos, hours, phone/click-to-call, Bill's recipes, map and a Google review link) plus claiming and tidying the Google Business Profile so the shop actually shows up in local "fresh fish Lucan" searches. Ask: Outside the loyal regulars, what's the hardest part about getting new customers through the door these days? • When someone new walks in, how do they usually find you today - word of mouth, passing the shop, or online? • If a website brought you, say, ten new regular customers a month, what would that be worth to a shop like yours? • Are you doing anything at the moment to get found online or to collect customer reviews, or is it all walk-in trade?
7.8	Sheridan Dental Laboratory & Denture Clinic	dental labs	Ireland	1a · lead %	Med
Approach: Start factual: "I noticed your website, sheridandentalgalway.com, no longer loads - the domain has dropped, so right now if a dentist or a denture patient searches for you, they only find old directory listings." For a 32-year lab that lives on referrals and trade relationships, that is a quiet leak rather than an emergency, so keep the tone calm and respectful of how established they are. Offer to rebuild a simple, credible site for free as a starting point, with no pressure, and let the relationship earn the rest.

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
Free hook: A free, properly built replacement website on a live domain that loads, ranks for "denture clinic Galway" / "dental laboratory Galway", and shows the 32-year credibility - replacing the dead site at no cost as the way in. Ask: When a dentist or a private patient can't find a working website and only sees old directory entries, do you feel that's costing you enquiries - or is your trade work so referral-driven that the website never really mattered to you? • Your old site sheridandentalgalway.com has dropped offline - was that a deliberate decision, or did it just lapse and nobody chased it? • Where do most of your new denture-clinic patients and new dentist accounts actually come from today - word of mouth, referrals from dentists, or people finding you online? • Roughly what is a new private denture-clinic patient worth to you, and how many of those could you realistically take on if more came in?

7.8	Haven Beauty Clinic	Hair & Beauty	Ireland	1b · free site	High
-----	---------------------	---------------	---------	----------------	------

Approach: Hi Louise - I came across Haven Beauty Clinic and was impressed: a 5.0 rating across roughly 90 reviews in a town like Nenagh is years of earned trust. The one thing missing is that when someone Googles "beauty clinic Nenagh" you don't have your own website, so people land on Fresha or Facebook instead of a page you actually control. I'd like to build you a simple, proper website at no cost so all that reputation finally has a home - no catch, you keep it either way. Free hook: A free, professionally built one-page website for Haven Beauty Clinic - showcasing the treatments, the 5.0 reviews, and a clear "book now" button - that they own outright with no strings. Ask: If you could fix one frustrating thing about how new clients find and book you today, what would it be? • When a new client finds you for the first time, do you know whether they came from Facebook, Fresha, a Google search, or a word-of-mouth referral - and roughly what a brand-new client is worth to you over a year? • You've built a 5.0 across about 90 reviews - is that happening naturally, or do you actively ask clients to leave reviews, and would you want more of them coming in automatically? • Are you trying to grow the clinic right now - more clients, a new treatment, another room or staff member - or is it more about keeping the regulars you already have happy and booked?
--	--	--	--	--	--

7.8	Aiton & Co Chartered Accountants	Accountancy	Scotland	1b · free site	Med
-----	----------------------------------	-------------	----------	----------------	-----

Approach: I'd lead calm and factual: "I came across Aiton & Co while looking at established Glasgow chartered firms. You've clearly built a solid practice since 1985, but online you're a bit invisible — the site is dated and split across two pages, and there isn't a single review on Google, Yell or anywhere a prospective client would look." Then offer to rebuild a clean single website at no cost as a way to start, and quietly point out that a firm of their standing should be visible when someone searches "chartered accountant Glasgow". No hype, just the gap and a useful first step.
--	--	--	--	--	--

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
Free hook: A free rebuilt single-page modern website consolidating the two existing pages, with their services, partners and Glasgow location clearly presented — no strings, theirs to keep. Ask: If you wanted two or three more good clients next year, what's actually stopping that from happening right now — capacity, or just not enough of the right people finding you? • When a new client comes to you today, where do they actually come from — referrals from existing clients, your accountant network, or anything online? • Roughly what is a new annual-compliance client worth to you over the years they stay — what does winning one more a quarter mean for the practice? • You've got zero reviews anywhere despite 40 years of clients — is that a deliberate choice, or just something that never got set up?
7.8	The Village Physiotherapy Clinic	Physiotherapy	London	1a · lead %	High
Approach: You've been treating Orpington and the surrounding villages since 1987 with a full team of chartered physios, yet online you've only got a handful of scattered reviews and almost nothing on Google — which is where most people now choose a clinic. I'd like to quietly fix the most visible gap first, at no cost, so a new patient searching "physio near Orpington" actually finds you and sees you're trusted. If that's useful, we can talk about turning that visibility into a steady stream of private enquiries. Free hook: A free, modern single-page "Physio in Orpington" landing page plus a simple done-for-you Google review link/QR for reception to hand patients — so you start collecting fresh reviews and rank for local searches at zero cost and zero effort. Ask: If you could wave a wand and fix one thing about how new patients find and choose your clinic, what would it be? • When a new private patient comes through the door, roughly what is an initial assessment plus a typical course of treatment worth to you over their care? • Where do most of your new patients come from today — GP/consultant referrals, word of mouth, or online search — and have you noticed online drying up? • Are you actively trying to grow patient numbers right now, or is it more about filling quieter slots in the diary?
7.5	D.S. Macdonald Watchmaker & Jeweller	Established local services / p	Scotland	1b · free site	Med
Approach: Mr Macdonald — you've built a genuinely solid shop online for the Nomination side, so I won't pretend you need a new website. The one thing I noticed is that for a 40-plus-year watch repairer trusted with Rolex, Omega and Tag, there's almost no Google review trail and no easy way for someone to book a repair online — which is exactly where high-value enquiries get lost to bigger names. I'd set up a simple review-capture and repair-enquiry system for you at no cost first, and we only talk about anything ongoing if it actually brings you work. Free hook: A no-strings review-generation setup (simple QR/SMS link sent after each repair) plus a one-page online watch-repair enquiry/booking form that feeds straight to you — fixing the two visible gaps without touching their existing shop.

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
	Ask: When someone hands you a Rolex or Omega for service, what is that job typically worth — and how many of those could you take on each month if more of the right people found you?
	• When someone brings in a Rolex or Omega for a service, roughly what is that job worth to you — and how many of those do you get in a typical month versus how many you could handle? • Right now, how do new repair customers usually find you — walk-in, word of mouth, or online — and do you do anything to capture a review afterwards? • Are you actively trying to grow the watch-repair side, or are you happy holding steady and just want it running more smoothly?

7.5	Harper Hair Salon	Premium hair & beauty	Scotland	1b · free site	High
-----	-------------------	-----------------------	----------	----------------	------

Approach: I noticed Harper Hair Salon comes up well on Facebook and the old Gary Thomson reviews, but there's no actual website when people search you — harperhairsalon.com isn't live, so anyone looking for you in the Southside lands on a directory or nothing. I'd build you a clean one-page site (services, your Wella colour work, photos, click-to-book) free, no strings, so you own your search result instead of Facebook owning it. If it brings you customers, all I'd ask later is help getting a few Google reviews flowing. Free hook: A free, professionally built one-page website (services, Wella Master Colour positioning, gallery, click-to-call and book) on the harperhairsalon.com domain you already own, so you finally rank as yourself in Google instead of a Facebook page. Ask: When a regular client leaves your chair happy, what — if anything — happens next to turn that into a Google review or a referred friend? • When someone new wants to book a colour or cut with you, how do they usually find and contact you right now — phone, Facebook, walk-in? • Roughly what is a new client worth to you over their first year, given your colour and repeat-visit prices? • Are you doing anything at the moment to bring in new clients — ads, posts, asking happy clients to leave reviews — and is it working? • Are you looking to fill more chair time and grow the client base this year, or are you fairly booked and just want to hold steady?
--	--	--	--	--	--

7.5	Copsey Murray Chartered Accountants	Accountancy practice	Ireland	1b · free site	High
-----	-------------------------------------	----------------------	---------	----------------	------

Approach: Lead with what you can see in 30 seconds: their site still runs on plain http:// (no padlock), which now flags as "Not secure" in browsers and quietly undercuts a 50-year audit practice's credibility, and there isn't a single review anywhere despite decades of corporate clients. Offer to rebuild a clean, secure (HTTPS) version of their site at no cost as a demonstration, then show how a simple review-request step turns long-standing clients into visible proof. Keep it calm and peer-to-peer: you're not selling marketing hype, you're closing a credibility gap that a firm of their standing shouldn't have.
---	--	--	--	--	--

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
Free hook: A free, modern HTTPS-secured rebuild of their website (or a single polished landing page) showing the firm as it should look in 2026, handed over with no obligation. Ask: What is the single biggest constraint on the practice right now - winning new clients, freeing up partner time, or succession as the longer-serving directors look ahead? - When a new corporate or audit client comes to you today, where do they actually come from - referrals, the network (MGI), or people finding you online? - Roughly what is a new client worth to the practice over the first few years, and how many new ones do you take on in a typical year? - You've 50 years of happy clients but no public reviews anywhere - is that a deliberate choice, or just something nobody's ever set up?
7.5	James Wilson & Co (Wilson Tractors (Berryhill) Ltd)	Niche B2B manufacturer/wholesa	Scotland	1b · free site	High
Approach: Open with respect for a 50-plus-year family trade: "Your name carries weight in Ayrshire and well beyond, but online your current site reads a few generations behind the machinery you sell, and there's almost no review trail when a new retail or export buyer Googles you." Offer to rebuild the front of the site so the stock and the 1968-to-now reputation actually show, with a simple way to capture a line of feedback from satisfied buyers. Keep it factual and low-pressure — no hype, just "here's the gap, here's what a tidy modern presence would do for the retail and export side." Free hook: A free, modern one-page mockup of their stock-front (homepage + live inventory + a 'why James Wilson since 1968' trust panel) so they can see what a current site looks like before committing to anything. Ask: If a buyer who'd never heard of you searched 'used tractors Ayrshire' or 'tractor export UK' today, what would you want them to see — and what do you reckon they actually find right now? - When a new buyer — retail or export — first comes across you, where do they usually find you, and what would it be worth to you if more of them landed on a site that actually showed your current stock? - What's a typical machine sale worth to you, and roughly how many of your sales come from people who found you cold versus existing trade relationships? - Are you actively trying to grow the retail/export side, or is the goal more to keep the established trade ticking and hand it on within the family?
7.5	Nettlestead Care Home	care homes/domiciliary	London	1b · free site	High Approach: Nettlestead already has a solid, well-reviewed reputation (CQC Good, 9.7 on carehome.co.uk) and a real website, so this is not a rescue job — it's about turning that trust into more enquiries. The one visible gap is that all those strong reviews live on third-party sites, not their own pages, and they have no system to consistently capture fresh family reviews or convert website visitors into enquiry calls. I'd open by acknowledging their long-standing reputation and offering to set up a simple first-party review-capture and a clearer enquiry path at no cost, framed as making the good work they already do more visible to local families searching for care.

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
Free hook: A no-strings first-party review-capture setup on nettlestead.com (a simple page that surfaces their existing carehome.co.uk/Birdeye reviews and gently invites new family reviews), plus a quick audit of their Google Business and enquiry path to surface more local search enquiries. Ask: What's the single biggest thing stopping you filling or keeping every bed full right now — is it the volume of enquiries, the quality of enquiries, or something operational? • When a family fills a bed at Nettlestead, what's the typical length of stay and weekly fee — i.e. what is one new resident actually worth to you over a year? • Right now, where do most of your new enquiries come from — carehome.co.uk, GP/social-services referrals, word of mouth, or your own website — and roughly how many enquiries turn into placements? • Do you have any system for asking families for a review at the right moment, or does it happen ad hoc whenever someone offers? • With 20 beds across an established setup, are you looking to keep occupancy steady, or is there appetite to grow enquiries / expand the homecare side?
7.3	Bexley Village Hotel	boutique hospitality	London	1b · free site	Med
Approach: Open by acknowledging the hotel is clearly doing real business - a 14-room Grade II listed conversion with strong staff feedback and steady Booking.com occupancy. Then point out the one visible gap: almost all of that goodwill lives on OTA platforms (Booking.com, Tripadvisor) that take commission and own the guest relationship, while their own site is a dated brochure with no review-collection and no real direct-booking push. Offer to rebuild the site so guests book direct and leave Google reviews, calm and concrete - keep more of each booking, build an asset they own. Free hook: A free modern, mobile-first homepage/landing page redesign for bexleyvillagehotel.com built around direct booking, with a one-click Google review request flow set up so happy guests start building your owned reviews. Ask: If you could change one thing about how guests find and book you today, what would it be? • Roughly what share of your bookings come through Booking.com and the OTAs versus direct on your own site, and what commission are you paying on those? • When a guest has a great stay, do you have any system that nudges them to leave you a Google review, or does it all just land on Booking.com? • What is an average booking worth to you, and how many extra direct bookings a month would make a real difference?
7.3	M McAllister Groundworks Ltd	Trades	Scotland	1b · free site	Med
Approach: Mark, you have run McAllister Groundworks since 2003 with your own plant fleet, but online you have a basic website and not a single review on Yell or Google, which means new commercial and domestic clients checking you out see almost nothing. I would tidy up the website and set up a simple way to capture reviews from the jobs you already do, so the reputation you have built over 20 years actually shows up when people search. No cost to start and no obligation if it is not a fit. Free hook: A free refreshed website / landing page plus a simple review-collection link (QR + text) that turns finished jobs into Google reviews. Ask: If you wanted two or three more of the right jobs each month, what is actually stopping that from happening right now - finding them, or having the crew/plant to take them on? • When a new domestic or commercial groundworks job comes in, where does that enquiry usually come from now - word of mouth, the website, or somewhere else? • Roughly what is a typical groundworks or plant-hire job worth to you, so we know what one extra enquiry a month is actually worth? • Do you do anything today to ask happy customers to leave a review, or has that never really been set up?

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
7.3	Paul Monaghan Chartered Accountant (PMCA Limited)	accountancy	London	1a · lead %	Med
Approach: Paul, your firm clearly has the credentials and long-standing clients — but the website looks like it was built over a decade ago, with a separate keyword-stuffed page for every town, and there's no live Google review trail backing up the testimonials on your site. I'd rebuild you a clean, modern single site and set up a simple system that quietly asks happy clients for a Google review after their accounts are filed, so new local enquiries see proof before they call. No cost to start and nothing changes on your end until you're happy with it. Free hook: A free, modern single-page website redesign (replacing the dated multi-page static HTML) plus a quick Google review-collection setup so satisfied clients leave public reviews automatically. Ask: If you wanted to grow the practice next year, what's actually stopping you right now — not enough new enquiries, no time to chase them, or capacity to take them on? • When a new client finds you and signs up for annual accounts plus tax, roughly what is that worth to you over the years they stay — and how many new ones do you take on in a typical year? • Where do your new clients actually come from today — referrals, the website, directories — and do you ever turn work away or want more of it? • When did you last update the website, and has anyone ever asked clients for a Google review in a structured way?
7.3	Cork Prosthetics Ltd	Dental lab	Ireland	1b · free site	Med
Approach: Open by phone on the public 021 number, owner-to-owner and low-key: "I came across Cork Prosthetics looking for a denture repair lab in Cork — you've clearly been at it since '92 — but the only thing online is a one-page free site and there are basically no Google reviews, so people searching 'denture repair Cork' may never find you." Offer to build a proper one-page website (their own domain, the 1-hour repair service front and centre) at no cost, with nothing to sign. Keep it calm and concrete: the goal is simply to make a 30-year reputation findable and to start capturing the reviews their happy customers would gladly leave.

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
Free hook: A free, modern one-page website on their own domain with the 1-hour repair service, phone, and Barrack Street location clear — plus setting up a simple Google review link so customers can rate them. Ask: When a denture breaks and someone in Cork goes searching online, what would you want them to find about you that they currently can't? • When someone needs a denture repair and finds you, how do they usually hear about you today — walk-ins, dentists referring, or online? • Roughly what is a new customer worth to you — is it mostly one-off repairs, or do repeat/B2B dentist jobs make up the bigger share? • Are you actively trying to grow the lab right now, or is it more about keeping the existing flow steady?
6.8	DeVere White & Smyth (dVW Smyth) Chartered Surveyors	Chartered surveyors, valuers &	Ireland	1a · lead %	Med
Approach: A 40-year Kildare Street firm like yours wins on reputation, yet there isn't a single Google review showing when someone searches "chartered surveyor Dublin valuation" — so prospective valuation and selling clients can't see why they should pick you over newer firms that do have reviews. I'd offer to set up a simple system that quietly collects a Google review after each completed valuation or sale, so your reputation finally shows up where buyers look. No change to how you work, and the first month is on us so you can see the difference before deciding anything. Free hook: A done-for-you Google review collection setup (a simple post-completion request flow plus a fixed-up Google Business Profile) so the firm starts banking the reviews its reputation already deserves — no cost, no commitment. Ask: When a new client picks you for a valuation or sale, what actually made them choose dVW Smyth over another Dublin firm — and how would a stranger searching online find that out today? • When a property owner contacts you for a valuation or to sell, roughly what is that instruction worth to the firm — and how many of those come in per month right now? • Where do most of your new clients come from today — repeat business, solicitor/referral relationships, or online search — and which would you most want to grow? • You've built a 40-year reputation; are you actively trying to win more new instructions, or mainly protecting the existing book and referral flow?
6.5	Gaia Italian Deli & Cafe (Gaia Delicatessen)	boutique food/hospitality	Scotland	1b · free site	High
Approach: Lead with what's missing, not a pitch: "I was looking for your menu online and noticed you don't really have a proper website — everything points to Facebook or third-party listings, which is costing you walk-ins from people searching Leith Walk delis." Acknowledge the strength they already have (great 4.8 reputation, loyal regulars) and frame the offer as making that reputation visible and searchable. Keep it calm and concrete: a clean website with the deli range, cafe menu and a simple way for happy customers to leave a Google review. Free hook: A free, ready-to-go one-page website for Gaia (deli range, cafe menu, hours, map, click-to-call)

SCORE	BUSINESS	SECTOR	REGION	DEAL	CONF
plus a simple QR/Google-review link so happy customers can leave reviews — no cost, no commitment, just to show what proper online visibility looks like. Ask: If you could fix one thing about how new customers find and choose you on Leith Walk, what would it be? • When someone new finds you online, where do they actually land — and is anyone sending you customers from those listings, or is it all word-of-mouth and passing trade? • Roughly what's a new regular worth to you over a year between the cafe and the deli counter — and would you rather grow cafe covers, deli sales, or both? • Are you doing anything at the moment to bring in new customers or collect reviews, or has the business mostly grown on its own?
Click a row for the opening approach and questions. ⚠️ Verify each contact detail against its source before outreach — researched from public data with a confidence flag.

Funding to fund the build & broker the deal

Ireland

Trading Online Voucher (TOV) — Website development, e-commerce and online payment/booking systems, di · 50% of eligible costs up to a maximum EUR2,500 (ex VAT) — i.e. EUR2,500 covers a EUR5,000 spend. Whichever is the lesser of EUR2,500 or 50%.

Grow Digital Voucher — Software adoption and subscriptions (CRM, inventory/stock management, · 50% of eligible costs, up to a maximum EUR5,000 (minimum grant EUR500). Businesses can apply for up to two projects but the combined cap stays at EUR5,000.

Digital for Business (free consultancy / mentoring) — Fully-funded (free) digital advisory: an approved digital consultant s · 100% funded (free to the business) — no cash match required; it is the mandatory gateway to the Grow Digital Voucher.

Enterprise Ireland Digital Marketing Capability Grant — External training/advisory from a qualified digital marketing consulta · Up to 50% of eligible project costs, to a maximum grant of EUR35,000.

Enterprise Ireland Digital Transition Fund (incl. Digital Process Innovation) — Digital transformation projects across the spectrum: going online, e-c · 50% of eligible costs. Smaller project types range EUR5,000-EUR35,000; the Digital Process Innovation strand goes up to a maximum grant of EUR150,000 (50%).

LEO Priming Grant — Start-up costs in a new business's first 18 months: capital/equipment, · Up to 50% of eligible investment, maximum EUR150,000 (grants over EUR80,000 up to EUR150,000 are exceptional and reserved for projects with potential to graduate to Enterprise Ireland). Note the grant is typically 30% refundable to the LEO over 36 months.

LEO Business Expansion Grant — Growth/expansion costs for established micro-businesses beyond 18 mont · Up to 50% of eligible costs, commonly up to ~EUR150,000 maximum (amount varies by LEO budget); like the Priming Grant a portion is typically refundable.

LEO Feasibility Study Grant — Investigating the viability of a new product/service/market: market research, development, or commercialisation · 50% of eligible costs (60% in the Border, Midlands & West region) up to a maximum of EUR15,000.

UK & Scotland

Growth Guarantee Scheme (GGS) — Government-backed guarantee on commercial debt finance: term loans, overdrafts, or credit lines · 70% government-backed guarantee to the lender; facility sizes up to GBP2m (up to GBP1m for borrowers in scope of the Northern Ireland Protocol). No grant cap - it is a loan; the business remains 100% liable for repayment.

Made Smarter Adoption Programme — Capital Expenditure (CapEx) matched grants plus specialist advice/consultancy · Up to 50% match funding, capped at GBP20,000 per project (business must contribute at least 50%).

UK Shared Prosperity Fund (UKSPF) Business Growth / Productivity Grants — Local business growth and productivity capital grants. Commonly funded with local authority match · Typically GBP2,500 to GBP10,000+ per business, with match funding usually required (commonly ~40-60% applicant contribution, e.g. minimum 40% match). Caps and match vary by local authority.

Help to Grow: Management Course — 12-week senior-leader management/scale-up programme: 50 hours of training · 90% government-subsidised. Full cost ~GBP7,500; participant pays just GBP750.

Scottish Enterprise Grants & Funding Calls — R&D grants (research/develop or significantly improve a product, process, or service) · Varies by call. Thematic digital calls have run at up to GBP50,000 per project; R&D and innovation grants are negotiated per project with match funding typically required. (SMART: SCOTLAND historically funded a percentage of eligible project costs.)

Business Gateway DigitalBoost Development Grant — Capital grant to improve digital capability: websites, e-commerce, online marketing, etc. · Matched (1:1 investment basis): up to GBP25,000 for VAT-registered businesses and up to GBP5,000 for non-VAT-registered businesses; grant awards commonly range from GBP2,000 up to GBP25,000.

Highlands & Islands Enterprise (HIE) Digital and Technology Adoption Capital Grant — Capital grant plus specialist advice to support digital transformation · Capital grant sized to the project's requirements (negotiated); community and voluntary organisations can apply for up to GBP5,000 towards digital/technology specialist advice plus a capital grant. Programme running June 2025 to March 2029.

South of Scotland Enterprise (SOSE) Grants & Pathways Funding — Range of grants and tailored business support for the South of Scotland · Project-specific / negotiated grants (no single published cap); Pathways Pre-Start is a GBP1m round within a GBP6m programme focused on women and under-represented groups. Match funding typically expected on capital/growth grants.